

Dionysios D. Dionysiou, PhD, receives George Rieveschl Jr. Award for Distinguished Scientific Research

The Rieveschl Award for Distinguished Scientific Research was created through the generosity of Dr. George Rieveschl. The award recognizes a member of the faculty for professional achievement in science. It is given for a specific research, or the entire canon of one's accomplishments.

Selection criteria include attainment of national and international recognition for superior scholarship through archival publications, continued creativity over a sustained period of time, professional activities, including editorial activity for reputable national and international journals and academic awards of the candidate. Congratulations Dr. Dionysiou for this great honor!