Linda Moeller Named “Employee of the Semester” for her Commitment to Students

Congratulations to Linda Moeller for being named “Employee of the Semester” by the McCormack Award Committee for fall semester 2013. Recognized for her dedication to the students, Moeller has worked as manager of the undergraduate educational programs in the Department of Biomedical, Chemical, and Environmental Engineering since 2003 and she has been a staff member at UC for over 22 years. As undergraduate program manager, she is responsible for the recruitment, admission, advising, and retention of students in the department’s undergraduate programs. From providing career and academic advice to listening to students’ personal struggles, Moeller’s efforts contribute to the success of over 600 undergraduates each year. Moeller received nominations from across the college, but her most glowing praise comes from the students. One student said of Moeller’s guidance: “She has always made time to meet with me to discuss my progress and address my concerns. She keeps me informed in new opportunities to align with my interests, and helps me plan for achieving my future career goals. As a result of Linda’s guidance and advice, I have been propelled forward, with years of research experience as a fourth-year undergraduate student and a deep clarity about my chosen career path.”
