Dr. Dominic Boccelli takes a sabbatical at the University of Adelaide, Australia

Dr. Boccelli, associate professor in the Environmental Engineering Program, has spent this fall semester at the University of Adelaide in their School of Civil, Environmental and Mining Engineering. He was awarded this position as part of an Endeavour Executive Fellowship, which is a competitive award granted by the Australian Department of Education. Rather than an academic research experience, this fellowship focuses more on professional development activities within the applicant’s field of expertise.
